Alexis believes that everyone has a success story, it's all about how you can bring it to fruition. As a social media and communication strategist, she is obsessed with innovating new ways of creating amazing content that's useful and effective. She has worked in the consumer relations industry for over 8 years, and has geared herself to better people's personal, professional and financial selves. She has worked for a financial institution as well as non-profit organizations. She is currently a senior studying Public Relations at Xavier University. Alexis is a leader who's consistently working to better herself and her team. She is truly driven by the desire to inspire and develop others.